WELCOME TO THE EISENHOWER VALLEY, the Alexandria neighborhood located west of Old Town. The Eisenhower Valley runs the length of Eisenhower Avenue beginning in Carlyle and ending at the City's western border with Fairfax County. It is an area with a vibrant future as the top location for Alexandria's new retail, office, and residential developments. Valley workers, residents, and visitors have many entertainment options including the AMC movie theaters, and the United States Patent and Trademark Office Museum, as well Cameron Run Regional Park's mini-golf course, batting cages, and water park. You will also find an enticing variety of restaurants and shops with free parking and easy Metro access. This map will help you find anything you need from basics like banking services and ATMs, metro stops, and services, to entertainment venues, dining options, and family recreation choices.

EISENHOWER PARTNERSHIP

The Eisenhower Avenue Public/Private Partnership was formed in 1994 to promote the development and redevelopment of the 4.5 mile-long area to the north and south of Eisenhower Avenue. Working closely with the City of Alexandria, the ACVA, the AEDP, and other organizations, the Partnership has been instrumental in a number of dramatic improvements in the Valley since then. Today, the Eisenhower Valley has three entrances to the Capital Beltway, is served by three metro stops, and is home to a broad mix of well-designed and high quality office, commercial, and residential development as well as recreation facilities, open space, and parks.

Eisenhower Valley landowners, developers, businesses, tenants, and residents are members of the Partnership. The Eisenhower Partnership's revenue sources include city funding, membership dues and fundraisers that have enabled the organization to be at the forefront in shaping the growth and development of the Eisenhower Valley over the organization's 12-year history. Evidence of our strong track record is the more than 7 million square feet of mixed-use development present in the Valley with another 17 million square feet of development in the works.

Please take some time to discover the unique character of Eisenhower Valley that makes it a popular place to visit, work, live, and play.

You can contact the Partnership by calling 703.684.5124 or e-mailing info@eisenhowerpartnership.org. More information about the Valley, the Partnership, and a complete listing of our members can be found on our website at www.eisenhowerpartnership.org.
